

Starting a family

Whichever way the cookie crumbles, turn fortune in your favour...

It happens.

Starting a family. New baby, new budget.

“We’re having a baby!” These are words guaranteed to prompt many emotions, but fear of the financial impact needn’t be one of them.

Most new parents draw on the expertise of people like doctors, parents and family members. In the same way, a financial adviser can help you prepare for your family’s future. Whether managing parental leave, maximising parenting payments, or saving for future expenses, an adviser can help you create a plan which gives you peace of mind.

Working with a financial adviser gives you the freedom to focus your energy on your new arrival and your new family.

Advisers can help with decisions about:

- budgets and cash flow management
- Centrelink entitlements
- consolidating debt and borrowings
- insurance needs
- children’s expenses and education.
